'Pathways' funding OK'd

Feds will pay for sidewalks, landscaping, Route 2 bridge addition, and possibly for riverside pathway

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel has been awarded in the neighborhood of $300,000 in federal funding to construct a system of sidewalks and landscaping linking the current village with the Bethel Station project and points beyond.

The money will also be used to construct a new cantilevered bikeway/walkway next to the existing Route 2 bridge over the Androscoggin River, and it may fund the construction of a footpath along the Androscoggin River, running from Davis Park to the Route 2 bridge.

The pathway, sidewalks, landscaping and bridge addition are all part of the "Bethel Pathway" application submitted in August.

The town received formal notification of the funding Tuesday, but the exact details of approval had not been released as of press time.

In July the town had applied for a total of $418,000 in federal funds to pay for the proposed linkage between the village and Bethel Station.

Bethel Station developers have offered to donate 12 acres of land to a land trust. The $540,000 valuation ($45,000 per acre) would be used as the matching contribution (20%) required to make the town eligible for the federal money.

The federal funds are expected to

New landscaping and lighting would run from Davis Park up Main Street into the village.

Similar sidewalks, curbing and landscaping would be constructed along Railroad and Mechanic streets.

But the fate of the proposed riverside pathway was uncertain as of press time Tuesday. At least part of the pathway appears to have been eliminated, but developer Heinie Merrill expressed confidence that most of the path would be funded.

Route 2 bridge addition

To the delight of local snowmobilers, the project will also include an addition to the Route 2 bridge over the Androscoggin River.

The 10-foot-wide, cantilever addition should eliminate the dangerous winter mix of skier traffic and snowmobiles on the narrow bridge.

"I'm real happy about the bridge," said Robert Lowell, trailmaster for the Bethel Snowtowers. "We've been trying to get the state to do something about it for 15 years."

Rick Young, trailmaster for B&G groomers and the Greenstock Snowsports, agreed. "That's just terrific, fantastic," he said.

The Internet is here

Bethel area is going on-line

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It's here now, in Crescent Park School, and it all goes well its high-tech neurons will soon be spreading throughout the SAD44 region.

Bethel's high-speed, low-cost Internet connection was up and running last week in the CPS computer lab. A few last minute tweaks are still being applied, but it is expected that by early next week, the CPS computer will have full Internet access -- and local users can begin tapping a world-wide computer and data network.

The net should quickly spread beyond CPS. According to Gould Academy Headmaster Dutch Dresser -- who has been the driving force behind the local Internet link-up -- by early next year all area residents should be able to access the Internet simply by calling a Bethel phone number. (A new telephone rate structure, going into effect on March 1, 1995, should make this call much less expensive for SAD44 residents outside of the 824-exchange.)

Hard to get there from here
The Internet is an explosively growing international phenomenon, but it has so far been largely confined to academic and corporate settings and to populous metropolitan areas.

A number of cities now offer Internet access to their residents, and more than 80 percent of the nation's colleges and universities provide access for their faculty and students.

But most residents of rural areas who wished to connect to the Internet could only do so by subscribing to costly on-line services -- and paying the telephone charges to reach those services.

Over the past year access options have been increasing and costs have been dropping, but rural areas are still at a competitive disadvantage when it comes to harnessing the Internet's vast economic and educational potential.

Gould on the net last year

About a year ago Gould Academy took a major step toward increasing Internet availability, when it became the first boarding school in northern New England, perhaps the nation, to offer full Internet service to its faculty and students.

The hook-up was made possible in large part by technical assistance provided by the Computer and Data Processing Services (CAPS) of the University of Maine system.

The success of that implementation brought many requests from school people and citizens of the Bethel area for access to these services, Dresser said. But despite the fact that the school is well equipped with IBM hardware and over a quarter of the boarding students have full access to all network and Internet resources from personal computers in their dormitory rooms, Dresser didn't feel that Gould had the facilities to provide the Internet services off campus.

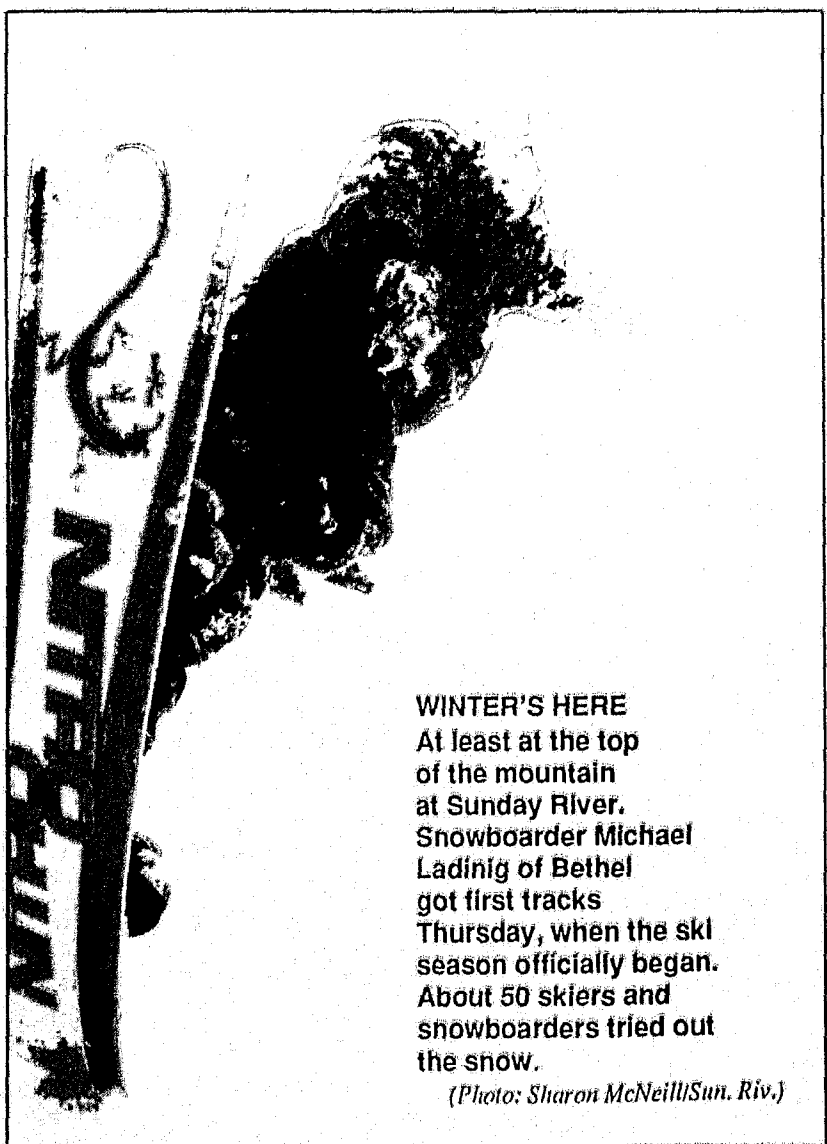

But he did begin to explore ways to extend that access to Bethel and other SAD44 towns. In May of this year he announced a plan that would attempt to forge an electronic link by means of the local cable television line.

The technological obstacles were formidable. For one thing, the local cable lines had never been used to carry such information, and there was considerable skepticism as to whether they could.

But Dresser lined up a team that was willing to try -- and the grant and gift funds needed to underwrite the effort.

With the cooperation of Jay Johnson and Gerry Dubé of the University of Maine System; David

Gould Academy bequeathed $5 million

Gould Academy is the recipient of a bequest valued at over $5 million. The gift was made by the late Muriel Park Mason of Bethel, who died on Aug. 19, 1994, at the age of 97. The benefactress was the valedictorian of the Gould Academy Class of 1917, a member of the Gould faculty from 1922-25, and the daughter of the late Ellery C. Park, treasurer of the academy's board of trustees and superintendent of buildings and grounds from the 1920s through the late 1950s.

Her husband, Harry E. Mason, a former Bethel banker and founder of Baker's Extract Company, died in 1971.

The bequest, thought to be one of the largest ever made to a private secondary school in Maine, was to be formally announced today (Wednesday) by Gould Academy Headmaster William P. Clough III and President of the Board of Trustees Alan B. Ordway.

In addition to the cash gift of approximately $5 million, Mrs. Mason left the school her home on Church Street and 36 acres of forest land adjacent to Gould Academy's 10-kilometer cross-country and biathlon trail on Grover Hill.

Ordway, speaking on behalf of the entire board of trustees, said "Muriel Park Mason had an abiding love for her alma mater. Her gift comes to the school at a time when we are forging plans which will move Gould Academy confidently into the 21st Century. With the prospect of that gift on the horizon,

Hunting season off to slow start

By WENDY HANSCOM

"So far it looks like the quietest, cleanest hunting season we've ever had," said Paul Fornier, spokesman for the Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Department.

With hunting season more than half over, there's been two hunters shot, and only a few search and rescues, Fornier said.

In an average year, Fornier said, there are about 10 accidents in the woods. Last season there were six shootings, none of them fatal. The last fatal shooting was in 1992.

The two men shot this hunting season received minor injuries. Both men were hit by buckshot pellets, Fornier said, one in the shoulder and the other in the chest. Both received emergency medical treatment, he said, which did not require a hospital stay.

There have also been two major search and rescue efforts, Fornier said. Both times concern was high, he said, because the lost hunters also had health problems.

In the Chamberlain Lake area, a hunter spent a night and the next day in the woods before being spotted by a Warden Service pilot just before dark.

Local rescue agencies also helped search for a missing hunter last week in West Forks Plantation (see brief, page 3).

Deer kill down

Preliminary mid-season deer kill numbers won't be available until late Wednesday afternoon, Fornier said, but so far it looks like hunters aren't bagging as many as last year.

"The deer kill looks like it will be down a bit," Fornier said, "but we expected that because less permits were issued. Also, when it's warm like this, the deer don't move around much. When it gets cold or

Bethel Station

Train-car restaurant could be opened by Thanksgiving

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Whatever else does or doesn't get finished this fall, the Bethel Station project will have at least one place to sit down and eat -- a theme restaurant made up of three railroad cars.

The "Iron Horse Bar and Grill" will consist of an 80 seat dining car, a 40 seat lounge car, and a third car that will serve as a kitchen.

The arrangement was approved unanimously by the Bethel Planning Board last week, as an amendment to the Bethel Station site plan.

The three cars will be located on the siding adjacent to the main track, and will be accessed by an extension of the current trackside platform.

The cars to be used for the restaurant are currently part of the Silver Bullet Ski Express.

Taking the three cars from ski train service will reduce the seating capacity on the Portland-to-Newry run from 400 passengers to 275.

The decision to turn the cars into a restaurant was not based on low ski-train ridership, but on the belief that the 120 seats would be more effectively utilized as a restaurant, according to Tom Richardson, Sunday River vice president for finance and base operations.

The Iron Horse will be opened as soon as possible, Richardson said, perhaps by Thanksgiving weekend. The restaurant is intended to serve the general public as well as skiers. It will be open Wednesday through Sunday, with the bar opening at 3 p.m. and dining beginning at 5 p.m.

Signage and sewage
The board raised no objections to the restaurant proposal or the platform extension, but Bethel Code Enforcement Officer Norm Putnam expressed concern about the amount of signage that is appearing throughout the project area.

Merrill told the board that an overall signage plan for the project has not yet been developed.

At the suggestion of board member Dennis Doyon, the board agreed that the restaurant's signage will be considered temporary until a permanent sign plan for Bethel Station is developed.

Sewage from the facility will not go to the Bethel treatment plant, but will be transported to the treatment plant at Sunday River Ski Resort in Newry.

Ambulance barn, drive-up donuts

In other business last week, the planners approved a revision to the site plan for the relocated ambulance barn. The revision allows for the doors of the barn to face directly onto Main Street, rather than to the side of the lot.

The board also approved an amendment to the site plan for the J&R Country Store on Route 2 that allows for the installation of a drive-up Dunkin' Donuts window.

KIDS AND BOOZE DON'T MIX

To the Editor:

I read with interest the article about The Only Place (Citizen, Nov. 9). I must say that I have mixed feelings about the plans that Nina Wheeler and Sandy Pond have for the place.

I applaud any effort to provide a place where kids today can get off the street and find a friendly atmosphere in which to spend their spare time. I also applaud anyone's efforts to establish a business, and wish Nina and Sandy the best in their new business venture. Concern arose, however, when I considered the fact that they are proposing a recreation center for kids that will be located in a place that also sells beer and wine.

One of the greatest threats to the well-being of our kids today is our culture's wide-spread substance abuse. By itself, alcohol abuse is harvesting a devastating toll among our nation's young people, claiming hundreds of young lives a year. Even when the results are not fatal, it often ruins a young person's life and destroys his or her family. And yes, even here in the Bethel area it is a problem. In my opinion, anyone wishing to provide a safe, friendly environment for the teens of today must have, as one of their goals, the elimination of the image of alcohol as a viable part of a healthy lifestyle. Instead, the plans for The Only Place, as I read them in The Citizen, seem to indicate that these young people will be placed in a position where they will observe adults purchasing alcoholic beverages, with the added danger that some of these teens will find an easy avenue towards the purchase of alcohol by having their older friends purchase it for them.

No, I'm sorry, but I cannot support such an endeavor, however well-meaning its intentions. Either forget the alcohol or the recreation center -- they just do not go together.

UNHAPPY WITH BUILDINGS

To the Editor:

Before agreeing to put the ambulance garage next to the railroad on town property, I would think it is about time to make the developers honor their commitment that they would buy land and move the ambulance garage. They have got away without buying land to put the town garage and salt shed, which they also committed to but persuaded the town fathers otherwise.

With four-way traffic, the location by the railroad should not be even considered especially with the going and coming of the proposed bank building at the location of the Chamber of Commerce building.

Most of us were aware why the primary school was closed and it wasn't the reasons given at that time. Those could have been overcome without too much cost outlay. How quickly it was found in good enough condition to be used by adults.

New chairs, tables, and carpets must have been purchased, although we haven't seen at what cost. There is also janitor service, which was one of the items mentioned at the closing to be discontinued to save money. The children were crowded into portables to show how much a new addition was needed. Well, we've got one, much grander than needed with much wasted space.

One severe critic of this addition has named it the Taj Mahal. How apt!

WHY NO THANKS

To the Editor:

On Oct. 9, Jackson-Silver Auxiliary at Locke Mills sponsored a card party to benefit the Special Olympics. Thanks to the patrons and the area merchants who supplied door prizes, we had our most successful year.

However, our efforts to thank those generous merchants through The Citizen have been ignored since we have seen nothing that we sent you published. How can we expect those merchants to support us next year when they receive no thanks?

Mary Lyon

One of the key functions of a weekly newspaper is to serve as a community bulletin board, and The Citizen is delighted to receive reports from clubs, groups and other organizations. We publish as much of this material as we possibly can, but when space is tight priority is given to news of upcoming events rather than things past. With any submission to a newspaper, including organizational news, brevity is a great virtue. Organizational news items should generally be no longer than 300 words, and the more concise they are, the more likely we will be able to find space for them in the newspaper. In the case of expressions of appreciation, there are two other options writers might consider: When the occasion is one of interest to the general public, many individuals put their thanks into the form of a letter to the editor; when the occasion is a private matter, a "card of thanks" is the suitable vehicle. There is small charge (usually $4.50) for a card of thanks, but with that charge comes a guarantee that the material will not be squeezed out because of space limitations.

NEED A MORE NON-VIOLENT MESSAGE

To the Editor:

"A picture is worth a thousand words." In this case, it is the picture on the front page of the Nov. 2 Bethel Citizen. Two children, with wide grins on their faces, are holding (toy) guns to the head of a third child. Yes, they are toy guns, but in this time of increased violence to others, why even encourage the suggestion that guns are fun toys? A picture showing happiness without a hint of violence, on the other hand, would have sent a more positive message.

Lynda Chandler

ON GUNS AND CANABALISM

To the Editor:

How many people looked at the faces on the front page photo in the Nov. 2 paper? The first thing peoples' eyes drew to were the guns.

You speak of childhood activities. Yes, grant you, those particular ones were played way back in the late 50s and early 60s (Roy Rogers and Dale Evans). But it is not one of today's childhood activities of the 90s. Speaking of the 90s, we have gangs that have real guns that do go bang-bang your dead. You know what? They don't get up like they did in the childhood activities back in the late 50s and early 60s. They really are dead.

I have heard on the news of kids, the ages of the kids in the photo, that have real guns and the cops have had to take them away. This society is a lot worse then it was 30 or 40 years ago. If you recall about five to eight years ago a mother's boyfriend put her child in the oven and propped the door shut and turned the oven on. Undoubtedly they were on drugs. And also what about the cannibalism in this country? Is that OK?

We don't understand SAD44. They are against drugs, drinking and smoking. But SAD44 feels it is OK to put a gun to someone's head. But would they think twice that it would be OK to use props such as a fake can of beer, or a fake cigarette, or what about a fake joint? The answer to that question is yes you would think twice. If you think this picture was so cute, would you think this picture would be so cute if they had a joint hanging out of their mouth or a cigarette or them putting a can of beer up to their mouth and taking a swallow? No, I don't think so. But to your way of thinking it is cute when they put guns to somebody's head.

Bill and Dawn Gross

IRRESPONSIBLE AND ARROGANT

To the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to strongly disagree with your answer to the four letters voicing their opposition to the publishing of the three children in their Halloween costumes. Every hunter safety course in the country advocates not pointing guns at other people, and for you to say that this picture depicts a harmless game is irresponsible and arrogant journalism. We also believe that Wendy Hanscom shares in this unfortunate episode for having set-up and photographed the children in this pose.

We would like to comment on two of your thoughts in your reply which makes us wonder if you ever read the larger newspapers or look at the evening news. First, you make reference to the "wonderful expressions on the faces of the children" and "but this is only a game, and nobody is really dead. The kids know that." Do you think that in those incidents where an unsuspecting child has taken a gun from their parents and shot a sibling or friend, quite by accident, they knew the gun was real and deadly and not a toy? How cute do you think their expressions were as the shot was fired?

You make a weak attempt to excuse your actions by saying that there are a multitude of other pictures you could not print if self-censorship was imposed in the name of protecting those who might harm themselves or others. Can you not deny that a picture of three small children on the front page of the newspaper is much more alluring to another small child than a picture of an adult in some adult-oriented activity?

You state in your last paragraph that The Citizen is pleased to provide a forum for the comments of your subscribing public, but when will you go one step further and admit your and Ms. Hanscom's mistake and print a formal apology for such a thoughtless and irresponsible piece of journalism?

Mark and Gayle Wigley

WE SHOULD BE TEACHING LOVE

To the Editor:

The photo in your Nov. 2 issue depicting children with guns to each other's head is an example of irresponsible journalism.

Children learn from a myriad of experiences. What they learned from your photo may be difficult to discern, but it left an obvious image of violence -- not a lesson ordinarily taught by teachers and parents.

Your defense of the decision to print it is inherently weak. You printed it because of "wonderful expressions" on the faces of the children, and because it represented "traditional childhood activity."

It was Halloween. Guns have never been a part of that pageantry. It was, no doubt, a fun occasion, and one might just as easily have asked the children to pose with their arms around each other, and we would have seen similar "wonderful expressions." We should be teaching love to children, not simulated violence.

J.R. Geraghty
Bryant Pond

DISSEMBLING...OUT TO LUNCH...BOMBASTIC...PATHETIC

To the Editor:

1. I have spoken to the teacher in whose classroom the offending photo was made. You are correct in stating that no specific request was made to refrain from use of same. This teacher did, however, expressly state, "We don't teach them (the kids) to use guns that way," and made it clear that she was uncomfortable with the pose. She assumed that it was unnecessary to make a specific request -- which you, of course, would have ignored anyway.

2. I have also spoken with a broad cross section of people in the last week, and have yet to find even one person who thought the photo was either "cute" or appropriate. People in my adult ed. class spontaneously volunteered their opinions that it was "tasteless," "stupid" and "unfortunate."

3. Making a bad judgement is indeed unfortunate and happens to everybody from time to time. Trying to avoid responsibility for it by equivocating, dissembling and hiding behind your constitutional right to free expression, simply reinforces the impression that you are "out to lunch" as an editor.

4. Perhaps you noticed a recent news item reporting that a major national chain of toy stores has begun destroying its entire inventory of toy guns -- over 120 tons of them. Could they know something you don't? Now!

5. You may also have noticed that kids are using guns against other kids with such frequency that it has become a national health hazard, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, but what do they know, right? If you are so ill-informed that you think this problem only pertains to urban America, I can introduce you to a family in South Paris that has suffered such a tragedy.

6. We're not in Kansas anymore, Toto. We live in a society that bears little resemblance to the days of "Hopalong Cassidy" and is demanding more and more that we give our kids good models and sound guidance about the daunting challenges they face as they move towards majority.

7. Your assertion that any gun accident of the type suggested by me... "would have long since taken place," is both an example of seriously flawed thinking and bombastic arrogance on your part. You imply that there's no hope for a kid who is that "impressionable" -- were you tempted to say "stupid"? All kids are impressionable, to some degree, and there is strong evidence that the more a child observes and imitates their environmental influences the brighter they are. Keen observation and imitation skills are a frequent trait amongst "gifted" kids. In this time of two career families, there is a growing tendency for kids to find their cues as to what constitutes appropriate behavior in the world at large. By taking the attitude that you as a print editor bear no responsibility, you are simply aping the sins of TV and Hollywood.

8. Your argument attempts to link this incident with hunting and newspaper depictions of hunters with their trophies. That is a red herring, albeit a pathetic one. It has to do with kids, guns and responsible/aware journalism.

9. You can wake up any time now, although the constitution does guarantee your right to sleep as long as you wish.

Truck rolls near Maine/N.H. border

CAMBRIDGE, N.H.--A Quebec trucker rolled his truck last Wednesday afternoon, spilling logs along Route 26 in Cambridge, N.H. near the Maine/N.H. border. Sylvain Matchieu, 25, of St. George, Quebec received minor injuries. He was treated at Upper Valley Regional Hospital in Colebrook, N.H. and released, according to N.H. State Police. Matchieu was traveling north on Route 26 when as he went into a right curve in the road the load shifted and the tractor trailer slid off the road rolling over into the left ditch. Matchieu was summoned for driving at an unsafe speed. Elsewhere in Maine last week, state police announced that a company whose truck rolled onto a car in South Berwick, killing the driver, has a history of having its vehicles pulled off the road during inspections. Vehicles owned by G.F. Bonville & Sons of Presque Isle have been pulled off the road 18 times during 29 roadside inspections since 1993, according to state police. In addition, the Presque Isle man driving the truck has had his license suspended seven times since 1988, according to state motor vehicle officials.

Commissioners give deputies a raise

OXFORD COUNTY--Oxford County Commissioners agreed recently to give Sheriff's Office road patrol deputies a 3 percent wage increase retroactive to July 1, 1994, and deputies will get another 3 percent hike beginning July 1, 1995. The county's contract with the deputies ran out in 1992. In 1994, deputies received an average of about $9.14 per hour. The county is still negotiating with the Teamsters Union over contracts for corrections officers.

Boise defends logging practices

ANDOVER--Boise Cascade forester Brian Milligan told the Planning Board last week that the paper company has not violated town laws while harvesting timber near Stoney Brook reservoir. Town Code Enforcement Officer John Percival inspected the harvesting site after receiving complaints from residents about turbidity in the town's drinking water. Percival said in September he felt soil disturbed by Boise caused the problem. "Boise Cascade has never been contacted by the Andover Water District about any problems concerning turbidity in Stoney Brook," Milligan said. "The code enforcement officer called us on Sept. 22 following a complaint by a resident about dirty tap water some time this past summer. Our forester could find no evidence of our activities causing the turbidity."

Mahoosuc Land Trust gets AMC grant

BETHEL--Mahoosuc Land Trust was recently awarded $2,835 from the Appalachian Mountain Club for a landowner contact program. The program will help inform property owners about land conservation options available through MLT. Interested landowners of Androscoggin River islands or riverfront will be offered information and technical assistance for land protection and public access for recreational trail uses. The long-term goal of the MLT project is to connect the trails to the Bethel village and the Appalachian Trail.

Local rescuers search for lost hunter

WEST FORKS PLANTATION--Personnel from Bethel and Tri-Town search and rescue teams helped the Warden's Service look for a hunter, who was reported lost after failing to meet hunting companions as planned last Tuesday afternoon. Linwood May, 56, was spotted Wednesday morning by a Warden's Service pilot. Wardens and volunteer searchers were particularly anxious to find the man after learning he was a diabetic who needs insulin on a regular basis. Rescue units from at least five towns responded to the call for help.

OCSO cruiser demolished in rollover

HARTFORD--An Oxford County deputy escaped injury Sunday afternoon when he lost control of a sheriff's department cruiser and rolled it onto its roof. Deputy Phil Taylor of Newry was unhurt in the 4:30 p.m. crash, according to State Trooper Michael Kaspereen. Taylor had spotted a car going 70 mph on Route 140. After Taylor turned around to pursue, he lost control of the 1994 police car on a curve and the vehicle went off the road and rolled onto its roof. The cruiser was totaled, Kaspereen said. The juvenile speeder was later located and charged with speeding. The rollover remains under investigation, Kaspereen said.

Andover selectmen to meet with MCI

ANDOVER--Selectmen will meet Nov. 16 with MCI officials to discuss MCI's recent tax appeals. The company has appealed its tax assessments since 1988. Attorneys for both parties will attend the 1 p.m. meeting at town attorney Curtis Webber's office in Auburn. Webber had suggested a meeting to discuss a "settlement."

Students expelled for using mace

RUMFORD--Two Mountain Valley High School students were expelled after school officials say they used mace on another student. The SAD43 School Board expelled the students under the district's newly adopted weapons policy. "Mace was used on school grounds and two students were expelled," said SAD43 Superintendent William Richards, "and someone was sprayed with it." Richards did not comment further on the specifics and added that the expulsions go along with state and federal laws pertaining to weapons in schools.

Norway says no to power district

NORWAY--Residents here rejected a proposed municipal power district that would have challenged Central Maine Power's energy monopoly. Voters vetoed the creation of a town-owned utility by a vote of 972 to 699. But Jay residents supported the formation of a publicly-owned energy alternative by a vote of 1,445 to 811. Jay officials say they have the support of International Paper which both buys and sells electricity to CMP.

N.H. hunter shot last week

CHATHAM, N.H.--Investigators expect charges will be brought against a Massachusetts man who shot a hunting companion last week in the Chatham, N.H. woods. Sumner Layne Jr. of North Conway, 69, was shot in the right hip with a .250-caliber rifle while hunting with three other men, according to state fish and game officials. Officials are withholding the name of the shooter. Other men in the party were identified as Layne's uncle and brother. Following the accident, Layne underwent hip surgery.

32-cent stamp coming in January?

WASHINGTON, D.C.--The chairman of the Postal Service's governing board has announced that the agency hopes to raise rates in January. The post office has proposed a 10.3 percent increase in stamp prices, including a three-cent increase in the first-class rate to 32 cents. The Postal Rate Commission is expected to rule on the increase in the next few weeks.

New base lodge, X-C trails

MT. WASHINGTON, N.H.--A new base lodge, scenic pond and 35 kilometers of year-round trails are currently under construction at the base of Mt. Washington. Great Glen trails at Mount Washington is still three years from completion. The project is being developed by Summit Road company, which owns and operates the Mt. Washington Auto Road. The company had owned 1,110 acres at the mountain's base, but sold 850 acres to the Trust for Public Lands. The trust then sold the property to the N.H. Forest Service. The land was made part of the White Mountain National Forest. The Summit Road company kept 250 acres for unlimited development.

Vandal charged with overturning car

MEXICO--A Mexico man was charged last week with vandalism in the overturning of a vehicle. A 1993 Hyundai parked on Porter Ave. sustained $4,000 damage after it was rolled onto its side, causing it to flip onto its hood. Adam Theriault, 19, was charged with criminal mischief in connection with the incident.

From the Bethel Police log:

CPS has skateboarder problems

On Nov. 11, a SAD44 employee reported that juveniles skateboarded in the Crescent Park School parking lot were causing damage -- dumping trash cans and leaving empty beer cans around. Police will make more frequent checks of the area, according to the report.

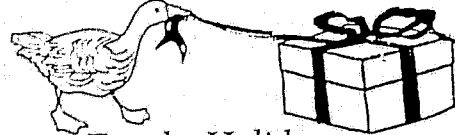

In other recent police news, on Nov. 13, a Route 26 resident reported that juveniles were driving a motor vehicle on the Chase Farm Road, which is town-owned and considered a public way.

On Nov. 12, a Route 232 man reported that his wife was missing. She had reportedly left her home to walk to a neighbors to play cards and never showed up. She later phoned home, said she was fine and would return shortly, the report said.

On Nov. 7, the Oxford County Sheriff's Office asked Bethel police to respond to a report of a burglary in progress at Breaux's Too in Bryant Pond. No one was found at the store.

On Nov. 12, Michael Szwec, 36, of Bryant Pond failed a field sobriety test, according to police and was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence and without a license. On Nov. 11, police arrested Joel N. Mills, 19, of Bethel on a charge of domestic assault.

The bridge is a main crossing point for nearly all the snowmobile trails in this area, Young said, "and it's been a real dangerous situation. I was just wondering if the state was going to wait until someone got killed to do something."

Funding should be secure

The federal funds are administered through the Maine Department of Transportation's Transportation Enhancement Program, as a part of the 1991 federal Intermodal Transportation Act. That act was intended to underwrite the reconstruction of the country's infrastructure, while at the same time encouraging the increased use of alternative means of transportation.

The money provided through the program is not in the form of grants; it is from the state's normal federal aid highway funding.

The funding should not be jeopardized by the state's suspension of auto emissions testing, or by recent changes in Congress, according to Albert Belz, enhancement coordinator for the MDOT Bureau of Planning.

A WAKE UP CALL

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday morning the country was awoken by a very loud alarm clock. Tuesday, Nov. 8, Augusta, Washington, and the rest of the country was given a wake-up call so loud and so clear that our politicians can no longer hit the snooze button for another two, four or six year nap.

The people of the United States have clearly come out against the kind of government that punishes achievement and rewards those who would have the government take care of every problem by allowing people not to work, to commit crime and not be punished, and in general allow them to shirk responsibility for their own lives.

Too long has the country allowed two boys to shoot their mother and father in the face with a shotgun and not be able to successfully take these brothers to trial.

Too long has the country abused a welfare system that sprung out of the natural compassion of the American people and used it to become lazy and unproductive.

We are a nation that cannot sit by and watch any person or persons suffer and not want to help whether it be on American soil or abroad. While it is in our nature as Americans to help those who suffer we also insist that people help themselves.

Too long has our children's education been sacrificed to those who would tinker with the system with great social experiments that have clearly failed.

Too often have we taken tremendous amounts of money and thrown it at the education system and found it squandered on "administration" with very little going to education or to the people who are charged with the responsibility of education, namely the teachers.

We ask our teachers to teach our children and take away the best tool they have -- authority. Teachers are routinely abused by students both verbally and in some cases even to the point of assault, but it takes an act of God to address these situations because the acts of Congress for the past 20 years have been to coddle the trouble makers and make the teachers pay for it with less than sterling wages and struggling with public opinion that blames them.

What does a teacher do with the group of kids that has just disembarked from the "weapons bus"? This is the bus in many urban areas filled with kids who have come to school with weapons.

"Be careful what you wish for, you may get it."

I have been very comfortable in blaming the Democratic House and Senate for all of the social problems in our country and in our state, but now it is time to put up or shut up.

We Republicans have been very comfortable sitting on the sidelines and blaming the Democrats and the country has said O.K. wise guy here is the bat.

The Republicans have won a tremendous victory across the nation, and it is now time after 30 years of talking the talk to start walking the walk.

Ross Perot said, "Words are cheap and deeds are precious," well precious you have been sent to office, now get busy.

Heyrend and Ed Merrill of United Video CableVision; and Nina Avergun-Reich, Jonathan Goldberg, Peter Kuzyk, Scott Mills, David Murphy, Cathy Newell and Dick Penley, all of the Bethel Datafication Committee, Dresser developed a pilot project to test the suitability of the local cable TV wiring for supporting a large data carrying network.

On Nov. 10, $20,000 worth of equipment from LANcity of Andover, Mass., was installed. The LANcity boxes translate signals back and forth between the digital format used in computer networks and the broadband format common to cable TV systems.

During early testing, Internet resources were readily accessed from the Crescent Park School computer lab.

The route those resources took to reach the screen at Crescent Park was a complicated one. For example, a recent satellite weather photo of the eastern half of the United States was down-loaded from its storage site at the University of Illinois, then transmitted through Boston, Augusta and Farmington on its way to Bethel.

On reaching Bethel, the digitized file entered Gould Academy's network and was converted to the sort of signals carried in the cable TV system and sent out on the cable TV lines. At Crescent Park the signal was captured by another appliance, reconverted to digital format and presented on the computer screen.

But despite that complexity the system at CPS is extremely user friendly -- it takes only a few simple mouse clicks to bring the satellite image from the university in the Midwest to the elementary school in Maine.

After further testing and stabilization of the large network among schools in Bethel, there are plans to offer local residents password protected, dial-up access to the Internet for educational, research and other non-commercial purposes.

Funding for this project has been provided entirely by contributors, who see it as an unusual opportunity for the children and adults of the Bethel community, Dresser said.

The Bingham Betterment Fund of New York City started the successful fundraising campaign with a significant matching grant.

Sunday River Ski Resort and the Otter Family Foundation provided nearly 50 percent of the required match. There were also significant anonymous personal gifts, Dresser said. Other major business contributors included The Merrill Corporation, SAD44, Bethel Savings Bank, Bethel Citizen and Bethel Rotary Club.

Bequest

we can continue to address the need for increased financial stability as well as consider some long-anticipated and necessary building projects. Mrs. Mason's legacy renews our energy and conviction to plan for the future, and we are indebted to her for her foresight and her love for Gould Academy."

Clough expressed his gratitude and added, "This bequest will go a long way toward helping us sustain the bold initiatives we have begun in the arts, in technology, and in experiential programs of various kinds. Also, it will help us maintain a long-standing Gould Academy tradition, providing scholarship assistance to able and deserving students and families from northern New England who seek a high quality education in a small school setting."

Gould's current endowment is between $5.5 and $6 million.

Hunting

especially when it snows, that's when the numbers go up. I was out with some game warden Saturday, driving around, checking different areas and there just didn't seem to be many hunters out -- in the areas we were in anyway."

Jeri Geiling at the Upton Trading Post said he hasn't seen too many hunters either.

"There's fewer hunters and a low kill at this point," Geiling said. "The weather has something to do with it. I think the hunters are staying in (until it cools off). I'm hearing from the people around here that the deer aren't breeding as much as in normal conditions. They've got food everywhere and they're not moving. It's been slow, and I've heard from everywhere in this area the killing's been down."

Hunter Don Feeney of Bethel agreed that the weather has probably kept the kill down.

"From the people I've talked to," Feeney said, "the deer have just started to move. It's so warm and unseasonable that the deer haven't been moving."

For those lucky enough to shoot a deer, the mild weather puts another burden on hunters.

"They've got to handle the meat right away before it spoils," Forner said. "The best thing to do is process it immediately."

The Citizen will report on local kill figures in the Nov. 30 edition.

Franklin Grange 124 met on Monday, Nov. 7, with 26 present. It was a regular meeting. A Resolution of Respect was read in memory of Mildred Dulapa. It was reported the sewage system had been started but they are still waiting on the electricity. Pam Moody wants to paint the door of the Grange Hall, and it was voted to let her do it. The program was as follows: opening thought by Bertha Benoit (who was lecturer in place of Anna Swan, who was absent); song by all; poem about grandma by Bertha Benoit; Lewis Woodworth sang a couple songs; Peggy Blake and Joe Yates gave a very good report on State Grange; music by Richard Felt and Dot Canwell; a reading by Lettie Brooks; song by all; closing thought by Bertha Benoit. The next meeting will be Nov. 21.

The Woodstock Historical Society preserves rare or remarkable antiques and other items of interest. They are for everyone to enjoy. The society helps us all appreciate our civilization and its impact more. Its cultural achievements are especially significant. Curator Larry Billings has given a book on the Austrian Empire to the society. The programs and research committee reports at society meetings are very informative. Each committee of the society also tells what it has done during the month. Curator Billings has background in many subjects important to the society. The society hopes you benefit from its attempts to research the region and area.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens met last Thursday with 46 people present. A turkey dinner was served and Edwin Howe showed a very nice video of his trip to Alaska. The next meeting will be at the Masonic Hall with the Star Birthday Club putting on the dinner. Please bring a gift for a child to be given to Christmas for Kids. The gift should be unwrapped. Cards may be exchanged if desired.

Bob and Gwenn Hoyt were overnight guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt, last Friday. Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt and Beatrice Farnum went to Kennebunk to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giles' to celebrate Gwenn's birthday with Gwenn, Bob and Gwenn's family.

Please, people with news call 665-2460 by Wednesday night.

The first week in November brought us a variety of weather. There were cool and warm days, colder nights, rain and strong winds. As nights grow cold and an autumnal moon rides high above the leafless trees and frosty grass, we can expect more.

So glowing have been the days that perhaps we forget what the sky to the northwest has stored away for us -- bitter cold and a treasure of snow.

It seems to me it is the night which brings the warning and every hour rolls up the pageant of winter.

One night recently I noticed the moon rising through the darkness and promised a frost. First there was a pool of light gathering on a low, thin cloud, and then brightened until the moon itself appeared and rose above the woods. I could see outlined on its face, as if put there by an artist, the silhouetted height of a great ragged pine, which crowned the ridge. Then soon I heard the hoot of an owl, or was it a bear? I never have learned the difference.

I have always loved the beauty of the night. In its starlit splendor there seems to be a peace, which daylight does not give.

The moonlit show of the pond began to mist and water veils of vapor. The pond loomed cold and mysterious and I watched the change.

Well, November is here and there is a colder sky and a prophecy of winter. It's time to again "count one's blessings."

In making all the preparations for winter, both inside and out, was once called "housing up."

Services were held at the Newry Community Church Sunday, Nov. 6, at 9 a.m. with pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. The Message of the Day was: "Why are we what we are," from Scriptures: Matthew 7:24-27 -- "And everyone that hears these sayings of mine and does not do them, shall be likened unto a foolish man which built his house upon the sand."

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club held their meeting Nov. 2 at the Town Building. Melinda Remington of the Androscoggin River Recreation Trail spoke and showed photographs of nature taken on the river in Bethel and Newry. The next meeting will be at 6 p.m. with a potluck supper/Xmas party, with exchange of gifts, at the Town Building. A meeting will follow.

Melissa Straus of North Waterford spent a night with her grandparents, Sylvia and Bill Wight in North Newry recently.

Only four members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford: Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson. Some of the others were Gretchen, Melissa and Sylvia spent the past weekend with Stephen and David Wight in Old town.

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

After reading my news last week, I decided there was no way I can make a long story short and I might as well not try. At my age I find I'm more aware of my faults and foibles but have little clue as to how to change them, or even if I want to, or if I would be a better person if I did. Oh, there are some things I'd like to change, like being more organized and efficient. Someone once said to me that she thought it was a trait one was born with or not, as the case may be. "In any event," she said, "I wouldn't let it get to me." I took her advice, I had to because it became apparent over the years that try as I might I was never going to become the organized, efficient person I'd like to be. I've read a lot of books on the subject. I'd be glad to loan them -- if I can find them -- someday -- maybe.

Val and Caroline Greene of Massachusetts are at their home here for the long weekend. The wind sort of blew them northward I guess. It certainly blew down one of the panels surrounding their patio, but luckily it didn't break. The winds have been more like March than November.

I thought once the election was over politics would fade into the background. More fool me. Now the news broadcasts are putting on excerpts from their election coverage to convince me I need to watch their news and everyone from news to talk shows has suddenly become an expert analyzer of the political scene. And through it all I get the feeling that nothing much has changed, or if it does change it will be in all the wrong places. Of course, one can always hope that a miraculous plan would emerge that would suit everybody, but I wouldn't hold my breath.

On the lighter side, I was a supper guest Tuesday at the home of Bill and Debbie Goff in Rumford. I discovered that Debbie makes a great lasagna and her daughter Kinty can put on an entertaining puppet show. I enjoyed the evening very much.

Please excuse the scarcity of news. The wind finally managed to take my phone out. It would wait until a holiday and long weekend to do it. I still think, illogical though it may be, that these things seem to have a mind of their own, and their mission in life is to frustrate humans.

Hi there. I am in Massachusetts writing this news so it might not make the paper in time. We'll see. Glad last week's news was o.k.

The electricity was off one day this week just as I was about to make supper, as the wind blew terrifically and blew limbs and trees on power lines, so we ate by lamplight. It was off about seven hours, so no dishes or TV. How nice!

Anyway, a few days later, Monday, when I wanted to vacuum and cook, the power was off again for about six hours. It's amazing how much we depend on electricity, but I did get certain things done that night not have gotten done otherwise. There's some good in everything. Don't you agree?

Tuesday was election day and 108 people from town came out to vote, which was a fairly good percentage. One of our biggest things was a new governor of Maine. It was a tight race and of course all the things voted on were important. Phyllis Adams and Eleanor Nelson were the ballot clerks. It was an exciting day at times and interesting, as the people came in at different times of the day to vote and stop to chat.

Next week is a busy one coming up. I will be coming home from Massachusetts on Monday; snowmobile club meeting on Tuesday; important church meeting on Wednesday; D.U.V. meeting on Thursday; Friday is free; and on Saturday the public benefit supper at the North Lovell Grange Hall to benefit Bud and Betsy Wilson.

This week I am at Belmont, Mass., while Dr. and Mrs. Abdul Traish are in Florida where he has a conference to attend and to give a presentation on his work there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlon Rowe have gone to Florida for the winter. Now, he'll be missed at the men's gossip lounge, where they all congregate to talk about happenings of town and people, but we'll try and keep you informed.

Fran Hamilton is another one who has gone to Florida.

Grace Nelson and her nephew Billy Bryan have gone to Florida for a week's stay and Dennis Farnsworth is looking after her dog.

Al Yemma has been in Massachusetts with relatives but is home now. Guess that's all for now and will be with you next week.

Howdy, folks. This is Tuesday morning, Nov. 8, and I must get my news ready to mail today. We also have to go to the polls and vote for some of those "Mud Slingers" sometime today.

Last Monday was Halloween, and while Peggy was doing her card work at Rite Aid Drug Stores in South Paris and Bridgton, one thing that I did was to mix up some Rice Krispie bars, just in case we had some hobgoblins show up here. But the evening passed with no hobgoblins, so we kept the Rice Krispie bars to take to the next Grange meeting.

Tuesday evening, we attended Oxford Pomona 2 as it was being hosted by Norway Grange. Peggy took one of her zucchini pies to help out with the desserts. It all started off with a very nice supper prepared by Norway Grange and the meeting that followed went very smoothly. Our lecturer, Stanley Howe, had planned a very interesting program that we all enjoyed.

Wednesday was a wet day, and we even had thunder showers around. Not much was accomplished outside because of the weather. The wind had also blown, and that evening we decided to visit Richard and Barbara Felt. Near the Olsen Farm, the wind had blown an old rusty funnel into the road. It was raining and Peggy didn't notice it in time to miss it. As the car ran straddle of it, it caught onto the underside of the car and slid along the pavement until she got stopped. What a noise it did make! I thought the Devil himself was after us by the noise.

Thursday was the Thanksgiving dinner for the Bryant Pond Senior Citizens group, put on by the Woodstock High School alumni at Franklin Grange Hall, to help raise money for the alumni. As our part, Peggy and I peeled, cooked and prepared about 25 pounds of potatoes and took them all hot and ready to serve. We picked up Mary Smith on Route 26 and took her to the gathering with us.

Thursday evening, we attended West Paris Grange. Attendance was small, as some of the members have gone to Florida for the winter. Connie Tuttle, deputy of the Maine State Grange was present and filled in as overseer and the regular overseer filled a different office. However, it was a real nice meeting.

Saturday morning, Peggy decided to do some baking, and I had more rototilling to do. Later in the forenoon, Rusty Merrill and Samantha Murch, two of Peggy's grandchildren, came to call on us.

Peggy had agreed to help at the West Paris Rabies Clinic Saturday afternoon, but with lots of time to spare, we decided to go to Middle Intervale Cemetery in Bethel to pick up some flower boxes that we had put out in the spring. We also decided to go with my pickup truck. The idiot light on the dash of the pickup had been telling me that I had alternator problems, but I had run the truck a few times and the battery had seemed to remain fully charged. When we got to Locke Mills it was raining requiring the use of windshield wipers, so we ran them without giving it another thought. When Peggy tried to start the motor of the pickup, after we had confiscated the flower boxes, it didn't turn over with the usual enthusiasm, but did start. We realized that we did have problems and left for home in the rain, only running the wipers enough so Peggy could see. There wasn't any grass growing under the wheels as we made our way back toward home.

Peggy really pushed the old pickup along as fast as she dared to, and we were about two and one-half miles above Trap Corner when the truck motor stopped on us. We were near the home of a Mr. Strout, where we went to call for AAA help. Dogs were barking inside, so Mr. Strout opened up the window and stuck the phone receiver outside so we could hear, and he did the dialing. At the AAA office, the lady told Peggy that she'd have help for us within a half hour, but the wrecker had to come from Rumford and we waited for more than an hour for it, but were sure glad to see it coming. Peggy's daughter, Loretta Merrill and her friend Barbara Stevens stopped at about the same time as the wrecker did. They took Peggy to the Rabies Clinic and the wrecker towed my old pickup home.

The Rabies Clinic was a success, even if Peggy was late getting there. They gave shots to 99 cats and dogs. One cat got away before getting his shot. It was what you'd call a howling success.

Sister Laura called from East Andover on Sunday morning and asked us to come up for dinner and a visit. We had nothing rushing here, so we went to East Andover and visited Laura for several hours. She fed us a very nice dinner, and we enjoyed watching the Apple Dumpling Gang in the afternoon. Sister Laura was alone, as her granddaughter, Mandy Cobb, who lives with her, was with her parents for the day.

Richard Felt visited at the Lovejoy home on Tuesday. Mary's caller on Sunday was Claribel Holden from Oxford.

Impi and Raymond Mack visited John Haverinen at Stephens Memorial Hospital one day last week. John fell and suffered a broken hip.

The annual Christmas for Kids' dance will be held at West Paris Grange Hall on Dec. 10.

There will be a dance at West Paris Grange Hall on Nov. 19, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. This will be hosted by the Sportsman Club.

West Paris Grange will be inviting the residents of Chapel Valley Home to come for supper and a program on Nov. 17.

HOCKEY AWARD WINNERS
Gould Academy field hockey captain Marie Lowell (left), daughter of David Lowell of Bethel, was elected to the MAISAD All-Star field hockey team by the league's coaches. Lowell, the top scorer at Gould, helped her team win the 1994 MAISAD Championship after a last place finish in 1993. Huskie goalie Kate Graham (right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Graham of Bethel, was named Gould's Most Improved Player of 1994. Graham allowed only 18 goals against Gould all season.

ASK A LAWYER

Can a school prohibit its students from wearing "Co-Ed Naked" tee-shirts in school without violating the students' Constitutional rights?

Schools are increasingly adopting dress code policies that set a standard of decency during school hours. Schools try to achieve a balance between the need to maintain orderly schools and the right of students to wear clothing of their choice. For example, banning T-shirts with gang insignia is valid to maintain order and prevent the spread of gang membership. Banning long hair for boys, on the other hand, interferes with their Constitutional right of free expression, unless the ban is tied to a demonstrated safety need such as working with machines in shop class.

The argument for banning "Co-Ed Naked" T-shirts is that permitting vulgar dress sends the wrong message to students. T-shirts that promote sex and the objectification of women ("co-eds") may be seen as victimizing women. Students may wear them as a joke or just because they are in style, but others may find them degrading or humiliating. Since schools generally teach equality for all people, such clothing interferes with that educational purpose and is inappropriate.

The banning of T-shirts with nothing more vulgar or lewd on them than the words "Co-Ed Naked" is a close question. Students have a right to express themselves through how they look and dress, as long as their appearance does not disrupt school or violate agreed standards of decency. The school must show its dress code is specifically designed to prevent disruption of education which interferes with education. The school should examine its dress code to be sure it reflects community and educational standards, not merely the personal whims or preferences of school authorities. What harm is the school trying to prevent? How is that balanced against the students' rights of free expression?

School boards would do well to involve students, parents and teachers when developing dress code policies. An opportunity for such a dialogue about community standards can be an educational experience for all concerned.

Piano Quartette at Gould

This month's Gould Academy Performing Arts Series program will feature the New England Piano Quartette, who will present an evening of chamber music. The performance, presented with the support of the Maine Arts Commission, will take place in Bingham Auditorium, Thursday, Nov. 17, at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public.

Pianist Frank Glazer and string musicians Millard Taylor, Scott Woolweaver, and George Sopkin have toured extensively, both together and as individual artists, and have been the recipients of numerous awards, including two National Endowment for the Arts Consortium Awards, which have made it possible for them to commission original pieces by some of America's leading contemporary composers.

Widely acclaimed nationally and internationally for their interpretive skill and technical command of the music, the members of the New England Piano Quartette are also noted for their wit and warm rapport with their audiences. In addition to their concerts, they conduct workshops, children's performances, and master classes. Prior to their evening performance, the Quartette will present a 9:30 a.m. assembly at Bingham Auditorium, sponsored by the Mahoosuc Arts Council, for students from Andover and Woodstock Elementary Schools.

Tickets for the Thursday evening performance are $5 for adults and $3 for students, and are available at the door. For further information, please contact Vicki Rackliffe at 207-824-3575.

ANDOVER MAN WINS AWARD

Archer Poor, Jr., of Main Street, Andover, an artifacts collector, was the recipient of the 1994 Annual Historic Preservation Award at the annual dinner of the Maine Historic Preservation Commission.

In an accompanying written tribute, the commission stated: "Not all collectors of artifacts contribute to archaeological knowledge. A notable exception is Archer Poor of Andover, who for over 40 years has gathered a carefully-documented collection of prehistoric artifacts."

"With his unique knowledge of northwestern Maine and its Indian sites, Mr. Poor has helped immeasurably with recent scientific field work," James Petersen's Richardson Lakes survey. R. Michael Granley's excavation of Paleoindian sites around Aziscohos Lake, and Brian Robinson's research into the Early and Middle Archaic sites of the region."

The commission noted that perhaps Poor's "most enduring contribution" to Maine archaeology is his donation of his collection to the Maine State Museum, "where many of his pieces are on permanent display for the public benefit of all."

In summing up his work with Archer Poor, one professional archaeologist said simply, "He is one of the nicest persons I have met in all my years in Maine."

GREAT AMERICAN
SMOKEOUT

On Thursday, Nov. 17, the American Cancer Society will celebrate its 18th annual Great American Smokeout. This year's smokeout has a new twist centered around the slogan, "Take A Bite, Not A Light." On the smokeout day, Mainers will be asked to eat a fresh Maine apple as a healthy alternative to smoking a cigarette.

The American Cancer Society estimates that there will be 170,000 new cases of lung cancer and 149,000 lung cancer deaths in the United States during 1994. For Maine, the numbers are 950 new cases and 900 deaths. And, an estimated 418,000 smoking related deaths occur each year, which roughly compares to the entire state population of Wyoming dying in a year's time. Smoking is the single most preventable cause of death and disease in our society.

With Maine's smoking rate slightly above the national average and youth smoking rate third highest in the country, the "Take A Bite, Not A Light" campaign will seek to educate adults and youth alike through work site and school activities. This year's campaign will add a new look to the Great American Smokeout while at the same time bring home the same message: smoking kills and quitting can save your life.

Teaming up with the American Cancer Society for this year's smokeout are the Apple Growers of Maine. By working together and making the campaign "Maine's own," the two organizations hope to reach a greater and much wider segment of the state's population.

Along with the "Take A Bite, Not A Light" theme, the American Cancer Society will be focusing on the immediate and long-term benefits associated with quitting tobacco. The society will be providing smokers with Quit Tip information as well as educating school-aged children on the dangers of tobacco.

For more information on the Great American Smokeout and tips for quitting, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-464-3102.

In Remembrance of your Birthday - Nov. 16, 1944 Russ Fifield

6 months has passed since you went away, yet in our hearts you will always stay. For time cannot erase the love we shared with you, or the many special things you used to say and do. Around us life continues on. But from our hearts your never gone. Though we feel the pain of your absence. We always will have the strength of your guidance.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Wife, Cindy, Fred, Todd, Beth, Tammy, in-laws and grand children

Card of Thanks

Thanks to family & friends, neighbors, and pastor for the beautiful cards and food for my 80th birthday party. I had a wonderful time.

Richard Carter

To everyone who has sent cards or notes, I stopped by the shop on the street, or made calls with words of hope and encouragement brought us clothes and toothpaste in Boston, sent toys and books for Helen, gave magic stones, wrote poems, slipped us twenty's, finished building our house, ran my shop, took turns taking care of Skeeter; you are the reason we've chosen to call Bethel our home. To my sister Jeanne, our friends Kathy and Liz, my sister-in-law Vicki from Clinton; you had great courage and though we were suffering, it was an evening of sharing and caring, and a true expression of community spirit. To everyone who sent money, donated food and gifts, or attended the dinner... we still don't know what to say. All we know is that we feel incredibly fortunate to be a part of this very special place. You've given us strength, hope and a feeling of peace in an otherwise frightening and painful experience. So if some day you see Helen in the school play, or running the footrace on Mollycoddet way, we hope you'll know that you had a part in making our dreams come true.
Betsey & Michael Cooper
